

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 4.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE EVENING WORLD
(Including Postage):PER MONTH.....30c.
PER YEAR.....$3.50

Vol. 32.....No. 11,004

Entered at the Post-Office at New York as second class matter.

BRANCH OFFICES:
WORLD UPTOWN OFFICE—1267 BROADWAY, between 31st and 32d sts., New York.
BROOKLYN—309 WASHINGTON ST. HARLEM—
New Department—120 East 118th St. Advertisements at 237 East 118th St.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.—LEADER BUILDING, 112
NORTH 6TH ST. WASHINGTON—510 14TH ST.
LONDON OFFICE—32 COCKSHURST ST., TRAFAL-GAR SQUARE.

The Evening World Prints Associated Press News.

A Gain of 36,213 PER DAY.

The following figures are taken from the books of THE WORLD and are SUBJECT TO ANY TEST or comparison to which esteemed contemporaries may be pleased to subject them:

Total number of WORLDS printed last day during December, 1890.....9,208,780

Total number of WORLDS printed last day during December, 1891.....10,331,420

Total gain for December, 1891.....1,122,640

AVERAGE PER DAY FOR DECEMBER, 1890.....297,058

AVERAGE PER DAY FOR DECEMBER, 1891.....333,271

TOTAL GAIN PER DAY FOR 1891.....36,213

DEFIANT OUTLAWS.

New York's outlaws evidently intend to defy the law until they are put in safe behind iron bars. Mr. "Honest" JOHN KELLY having kept his dive closed for one night, and thus satisfied his conscience, opened it again on Saturday night and last night. So did Mr. CARNEY WELCH, and Mr. FRANK STEVENSON and the rest of the band.

This is but another illustration of the lawlessness of these worthies. For years they have defied all decency and authority. They think that they are too powerful to be molested. McElroy had the same idea. They can only put off the day of reckoning.

GARZA'S REVOLUTION.

The formation of the country in which Revolutionist GARZA is conducting his present movements is such as to lead to the utmost his real strength and of surrounding his operations with a veil of uncertainty. It is certain that he has himself a much more skillful leader than the Mexican authorities gave him credit for being. Probably the Diaz Government has none so soon brought its immediately available forces to the border, ready to receive any advance of the revolutionists.

As for GARZA's skirmishes with the United States troops, they prove nothing as to his strength or intentions. It is not for the interest to fight earnestly with this Government. He is shrewd enough to see that and to do a great deal of clever dodging.

The Flores proclamation, calling Mexicans to arms, as published in this morning's dispatches, very probably furnishes a key to the present state of the whole Garza movement. The leader, it is likely, is simply waiting and dodging along the border, accepting what recruits he can get, but denouncing for his own operations upon the incitement, by proclamation and by secret agencies, as defined in the words of Flores. Failing this accomplishment, it does not seem that the movement is to be one of much longer existence.

FOR SAFETY ON THE CENTRAL.
This World was able to report progress this morning in its campaign for public safety on the New York Central Railway. President Dirck has notified the Railway Commissioners that the black signal system will be extended to Peekskill within six weeks, to Albany as rapidly as it can be constructed, and also from Albany to Buffalo. The Company has been determined which of the three systems under examination is the best.

In that the Company has decided to act, there is progress. But great public interests demand that it shall now act promptly. It has already been too fatally slow.

There was, rushing through the streets yesterday, under the impression that he was pursued by rats, carried a big cat as a last resort should the rodent army press him too closely. But next time he should take a fox-terrier. It would do better execution than a cat.

It is given out as an ominous fact that during forty minutes of big New Year's reception the Kaiser spoke not forty words. It doesn't seem to strike the correspondents that the very things he left unsaid may longer preserve the peace of Europe.

Gov. FLOWER, it is said, will first recommend an immediate appropriation of the State's people. Good. And the Legislature, it is declared, will act promptly on the recommendation. Better.

WARNER MILLER told a city congregation yesterday that he believed the world was growing better. It is suspected that his optimism experienced a blow when he realized the defeat of PLATT.

The Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church has thrown open all its pews to the public without price. This is a practical step towards making salvation free.

Even a year in jail will make Glen Gardner's over-vigilant committee think twice before it tars and feathers another woman as it did poor JELIA BEAM.

Gov. CAMPBELL's final message to the Ohio Legislature is in six lines. In such brevity there should be the soul of much statesmanship.

The snow flurry of yesterday appears to have been nothing more than a bit of New Year flirtatiousness on the part of old Winter.

Speaker CRISP has no fellow-citizen who would not be pleased to see him well enough to preside over the House tomorrow.

The office of Factory Inspector calls loudly for a man of the measure of its own importance.

As for New York's outlaws, they must go.

THE CLEANER.

Coming downtown in an elevated train this morning I heard a saloon-keeper, who sat next me telling a friend that he would have been his liquor store on New Year's Day, but it was not possible. "I found that the front door was the only one which could be secured," said he. "I had no key for the side door, and I had had one, the lock was useless. That side door hadn't been locked since I bought the place, and no attention had been paid to fastening which I had no occasion to use, as I have kept open day and night."

I see that Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger is quoted as saying that roller-skating is one of her pastimes, and that "if there was a roller-skating rink now in town I should be one of its first patrons." Mrs. Cruger is evidently unaware that there is such a place in Harlem, and what a boom it would be for the proprietor if the society queen and famous author should make her appearance on the polished floor some evening. The spectacle of this high-bred beauty gliding gracefully about on the roller wheels would fill the managers' hearts with a joy they have not known since the town went crazy on casters.

A team of horses driven through the Park the other day was the object of many admiring glances, for in the gentleman who held the ribbons was recognized Mr. Robert Bonner, one of the horses was the famous Sunol. Mr. Bonner is getting the mare used to the pole before attempting to drive her alone.

I am glad to see that Col. Emmons Clark, the veteran Secretary of the Health Department, is on the way to recovery. He has been suffering from an attack of the grip, and at one time his recovery was considered doubtful.

There still appears to be a suspicion that Mrs. Osborne, whose theft of her friend's jewels, formed the most recent cause celebre in London social life, came to this country on the city of Paris under an assumed name. Pursuer Miller of the big human lion, assures me that Mrs. Osborne was not a passenger.

Why, it would be impossible for her to come over here without being recognized," he said. "In the first place, in case in years has been given much publicity in the London newspapers, and her picture is familiar to every person on a transatlantic steamer. Secondly, I was personally acquainted with every cabin passenger on this trip, and I know she was not on board."

How Quasy Must Be Seated.
[From the Herald Tribune.]
If Senator Quay is to be defeated for renomination it must be by the friends of the Republican party, not by the personal enemies of himself.

A Want Filled Long Ago.
[From the Philadelphia Ledger.]
A new self-acting astronomical attachment for the telescope, which is full of new and gastronomic device that will do the same service for poor weak men.

As to the Tax on Tin.
[From the Cleveland Press.]
The tin-plate tax will reach nearly $200,000 a year. It is the only one of the people's pockets. If the employment of American labor is the purpose of the tax, it would be cheaper to tax the people to pay the wages of the tin-plate makers while they did nothing at all.

The Crank's Inscrutability.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Who could have foreseen that such a man as Mr. Childs would have been imported for his money while one of the Vanderbilt's should be left with a demand for his brains? Truly the ways of the crank are inscrutable.

And Boston Believes in Poth.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Once again it is announced that Mr. Howells will have to leave Boston forever. Mr. Howells is the Adeline Patti of literature.

Does John L. Want Forgiveness?
[From the Chicago Press.]
John L. Sullivan is losing prestige through his singular actions, but if he will trace up and administer a sound thrashing to one Charles Mitchell, of England, all will be forgiven.

As a Monumental Prodigy.
[From the Chicago Press.]
That statue stationer in Washington who turned his colleagues in Congress that he was now perfectly familiar with the tariff question, for he had spent two whole weeks in studying it, should be put on exhibition at the World's Fair.

Electric Safety.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Portable electric lanterns seem to be an established fact. When they come into general use catastrophes in houses caused by the explosion of a lamp will be a thing of the past. A

It is given out as an ominous fact that during forty minutes of big New Year's

Kind to the Police.

A boy conducted an oddish man into the presence of a policeman on Fourteenth street the other day, and when the officer asked what the trouble was, the stranger said:

"I expect I've bin robbed of my watch."

"Not the slightest. I was down here somewhere by a ferry and took a drink with a man. Might he got it?"

"Anywhere else?"

"I was over here somewhere by a park, and a good-natured feller wrestled me down on the grass. He might have got it."

"Anywhere else?"

"I jumped off a street car down here somewhere and fell head over heels. I went back and found my jack-knife, but the watch wasn't lying around."

"Have any other adventures?" queried the officer.

"I fell asleep in a place down by the river, and I believe some one stole 15 cents out of my pocket, but I don't think 'nuthin' about the watch."

"I can't help you any," said the officer, as he turned away.

"No, I didn't 'spect you could, but I thought I'd tell you about it, and kinder put you on your guard. If you carry any valuables about you keep your eyes peeled. This is a powerful big town, with lots of wicked folks in it, and they'd rob you quicker 'n a wink."

"I think I can take care of myself," remarked the officer.

"I hope you kin, but don't be too over-confident. That's the way I thought, and where am I now? I traded a year's call for that watch last Spring, and then give $2 to have her plated over, and where is she today? Just take a naylor's advice and keep your eyes peeled. I'll be around here for a day or two yet, and if anybody tries any gum-game on you just holler, and I'll be right on deck to help give him an all-fired wallopin'."

M. QUAD.

THE CLEANER.

Coming downtown in an elevated train this morning I heard a saloon-keeper, who sat next me telling a friend that he would have been his liquor store on New Year's Day, but it was not possible. "I found that the front door was the only one which could be secured," said he. "I had no key for the side door, and I had had one, the lock was useless. That side door hadn't been locked since I bought the place, and no attention had been paid to fastening which I had no occasion to use, as I have kept open day and night."

I see that Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger is quoted as saying that roller-skating is one of her pastimes, and that "if there was a roller-skating rink now in town I should be one of its first patrons." Mrs. Cruger is evidently unaware that there is such a place in Harlem, and what a boom it would be for the proprietor if the society queen and famous author should make her appearance on the polished floor some evening. The spectacle of this high-bred beauty gliding gracefully about on the roller wheels would fill the managers' hearts with a joy they have not known since the town went crazy on casters.

A team of horses driven through the Park the other day was the object of many admiring glances, for in the gentleman who held the ribbons was recognized Mr. Robert Bonner, one of the horses was the famous Sunol. Mr. Bonner is getting the mare used to the pole before attempting to drive her alone.

I am glad to see that Col. Emmons Clark, the veteran Secretary of the Health Department, is on the way to recovery. He has been suffering from an attack of the grip, and at one time his recovery was considered doubtful.

There still appears to be a suspicion that Mrs. Osborne, whose theft of her friend's jewels, formed the most recent cause celebre in London social life, came to this country on the city of Paris under an assumed name. Pursuer Miller of the big human lion, assures me that Mrs. Osborne was not a passenger.

Why, it would be impossible for her to come over here without being recognized," he said. "In the first place, in case in years has been given much publicity in the London newspapers, and her picture is familiar to every person on a transatlantic steamer. Secondly, I was personally acquainted with every cabin passenger on this trip, and I know she was not on board."

How Quasy Must Be Seated.
[From the Herald Tribune.]
If Senator Quay is to be defeated for renomination it must be by the friends of the Republican party, not by the personal enemies of himself.

A Want Filled Long Ago.
[From the Philadelphia Ledger.]
A new self-acting astronomical attachment for the telescope, which is full of new and gastronomic device that will do the same service for poor weak men.

As to the Tax on Tin.
[From the Cleveland Press.]
The tin-plate tax will reach nearly $200,000 a year. It is the only one of the people's pockets. If the employment of American labor is the purpose of the tax, it would be cheaper to tax the people to pay the wages of the tin-plate makers while they did nothing at all.

The Crank's Inscrutability.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Who could have foreseen that such a man as Mr. Childs would have been imported for his money while one of the Vanderbilt's should be left with a demand for his brains? Truly the ways of the crank are inscrutable.

And Boston Believes in Poth.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Once again it is announced that Mr. Howells will have to leave Boston forever. Mr. Howells is the Adeline Patti of literature.

Does John L. Want Forgiveness?
[From the Chicago Press.]
John L. Sullivan is losing prestige through his singular actions, but if he will trace up and administer a sound thrashing to one Charles Mitchell, of England, all will be forgiven.

As a Monumental Prodigy.
[From the Chicago Press.]
That statue stationer in Washington who turned his colleagues in Congress that he was now perfectly familiar with the tariff question, for he had spent two whole weeks in studying it, should be put on exhibition at the World's Fair.

Electric Safety.
[From the Chicago Press.]
Portable electric lanterns seem to be an established fact. When they come into general use catastrophes in houses caused by the explosion of a lamp will be a thing of the past. A

It is given out as an ominous fact that during forty minutes of big New Year's Fads, Fancies and Fashions That Delight the Gentler Sex.

Latest Styles of Hair-Dressing—Gloves for Street and Evening—Wear—Pocketbooks Are High Priced—Buttons and Laced Boots for Walking.

Hairdressing, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a graceful cluster. After a little practice, the hair is most simple style, and easily managed, of course, if the hair is not abundant, some small addition is necessary, and pins curd made from combs will be preferred by those who object to wear other people's hair.

Buttons, when carried to the extreme point of the present fashion, is very startling, and begins to rival the hideous clignon of bygone years. The prettiest style is undoubtedly small, but, to look well, the hair must be nicely styled and drawn back, not too tightly to the back, where it is fixed on a level with the top of the head. The ends are then divided into small locks, which, tufted at the end with a comb, are rolled round the fingers and lightly pinned to the head in a